Students Favor Legalized Abortion

A survey made by the Sikeston high school sociology class shows 56 per cent of 100 of the students favor legalized abortion. This is eight per cent above the same number of adults included in a survey to determine if there is a generation gap in Sikeston.

There were 15 percentage points difference about whether the United States should continue the present space program. Thirty-two per cent of the students favored the legalization. Eighteen per cent of the adults voted for legalization. Sixty-one per cent of the students favor continuing under present laws compared with 70 per cent of adults.

Students and adults were given a list of five presidential candidates, they would vote for today if an election was held. The percentage results for students-adults respectively:

Richard Nixon, 27-34; Edward Kennedy, 35-29; Edmund Muskie, 4-10; George McGovern, 2-5; and George Wallace, 23-16.

A 53 per cent majority of the students favored maintaining the electoral college in contrast with 54 per cent adults who favored abolishment.

Majorities of students and adults favored taking action against college demonstrators. Sixty-five per cent of adults favored action. Fifty-nine per cent of the students agreed with adults.

Opinion on U.S. policy in Southeast Asia did not contrast a great deal. Twenty-four per cent of the students voted to continue present policy. The same question drew 20 per cent adult approval. Thirty-six per cent of the students favored complete withdrawal compared with 35 per cent of the adults. Forty per cent of the students

Guerrilla Attack on School Bus Kills 10

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab guerrillas ambushed a school bus today, killing 10 Israelis, at least seven of them children, and wounding 21.

Jerusalem protested to the U.N. Security Council about the attack, which occurred near Israel's border with Lebanon. It did not ask for a meeting.

The Arabs fired bazookas and small arms about 15 feet from the bus as it headed towards a border school.

The wounded children, many of whom lost limbs, were flown to hospitals.

Israeli planes and ground troops raided Egypt's major naval base on the Red Sea during the night.

Aboard the ambushed bus, bloodstained satchels and lunchbags were strewn over the seats.

At least five of the dead were aged 6 to 8. Two teachers and the driver also perished. The driver was thrown 35 feet from the bus.

An Israeli soldier searching the area after the incident stepped on a mine and was wounded.

Two packs of Jordanian cigarettes were found next to four bazooka shells which had not been fired. Footprints indicated eight men were involved.

The bus had picked up 30-35 persons to take to school.

"This bus goes by here every day, so they must know about it," said one settler. "Also, five minutes earlier a taxi and a truck drove by and nothing happened."

The Foreign Ministry said the letter to the Security Council stressed "the gravity of this crime perpetrated against innocent school children."

The Israeli raiders hit Port Safage, 250 miles southeast of Suez and 87 miles south of Sharm el Sheikh, the nearest Israeli-held point on the Sinai Peninsula, a spokesman said.

All Israeli forces returned safely, he reported.

The spokesman gave no further details. Six days ago, Israeli warplanes sank an Egyptian destroyer and a missile boat in the Red Sea south of Safage. That attack was retaliation for the sinking of an Israeli fishing trawler by Egyptian missiles, the Israelis said.

The ambush of the bus and the killing or wounding of so many children was certain to touch off a public outcry in Israel for vengeance, and it was considered likely that the Israeli armed forces would retaliate with another major raid into southern Lebanon.

The Lebanese government announced that half an hour after the ambush Israeli artillery opened up on the Lebanese border towns of Bint Jbeil and Yaroun near the site, killing one woman, and injuring two women and two children. The Lebanese said their artillery replied, and the duel was continuing three hours later.

The U.N. Security Council on Tuesday night condemned Israel for a retaliatory sweep in southeast Lebanon May 12 in which the Israelis said they killed 30 Arab guerrillas and captured 15. But Israel told the council it would continue to retaliate, that guerrillas attacking in Israel could not find sanctuary in the neighboring Arab countries.

The ambush took place on a main border road near Baram, a kibbutz about 18 miles east of the Mediterranean. Settlers in the kibbutz heard the firing, then an explosion, and ran to the scene.

In Cairo, Egyptian Information Minister Hassanin Heikal reported that Israel has escalated its air attacks along the Suez Canal to 625 sorties during the past week, using "2,000-pound bombs, the heaviest caliber produced by U.S. arsenals."

Laird said today South Vietnamese troops should be free to remain in Cambodia once

Interviewed on NBC's Today show, Laird said he feels the South Vietnamese should be permitted to enter the Cambodia sanctuaries if the North Vietnamese attempt to rebuild them.

Laird repeated his pledge and that of President Nixon that every American soldier will be out of Cambodia by June 30. But he said he didn't think it would serve any useful purpose "to have a firm, fixed rule" against sending or leaving South Vietnamese troops in Cambodia.

Laird called the allied thrust into Cambodia by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops "a great tactical success." He said it exceeded expectations as far as the destruction of enemy supplies and captured food was concerned.

As for the strategic success of the operation which began April 30, Laird said that would have to be judged on the progress of our Vietnamization program and the decrease in U.S. casualties.

"I think the strategic success will have great effect on American public opinion and a far greater effect on Hanoi," he said.

Laird was elected to the position last fall to serve from May of 1970 to May of 1971.

Benefit Hikes Advance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to boost early and long-range increases in Social Security benefits—and taxes—has passed the House as a special Senate committee called for a major reform of the system to avoid sentencing retired persons to a twilight life of poverty.

The House-passed bill calls for a 5 per cent increase in benefits in 1971 with a provision for future increases geared to the cost of living.

The bill was sent to the Senate where considerable sentiment exists for further increases, a feeling bolstered by the annual report released today by the Special Senate Committee on Aging.

The committee said despite recent hikes in Social Security benefits about 7 million of the 20 million Americans age 65 or over live in or near poverty.

Excessive speed caused Donald Dodson, 24, Canthersville, to lose control of a 1964 Plymouth, on a gravel road three miles northeast of Steele, Thursday at 8 p.m.

The driver received a head and back injury. Three passengers were hurt. Cathy Dodson, 19, Canthersville, had a back injury; Angela Dodson, five months, cuts on her head and bruises; and Richard Dodson, 67, Steele, cuts on his head and possible internal injuries.

All were taken to Pemisot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

The car left the road, went into a drainage ditch and overturned.

An accident Thursday at 5:30 p.m., five miles north of Rives in Dunklin county, injured Ralph McLean, 15, Steele, passenger in a 1964 Ford, driven by Richard M. McLean, 63, Steele.

The patrol said the car came around a curve too fast, left the road, hit an embankment and overturned.

Young McLean received bruises and a shoulder injury. He was taken to Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett.

The driver was given a summons for excessive speed.

An accident in Madison county Thursday at 11:35 a.m., one half mile east of Me Lamotte, sent three to Madison County Memorial hospital in Fredericktown.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Judging from letters to the Standard, sometimes it's hard to tell which dogs are worse — the pets or the owners.

A "GREAT EXAMPLE" FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

The name of Peter Fonda, along with that of his actress sister, Jane, has recently appeared in the news of "anti-Vietnam" demonstrations. While we support the right of Fonda, or any other public figure, to dissent from government policy — as we reserve our own right to disagree with the government on many issues — we are somewhat confused as to what moral, ethical, or practical motives should impel Mr. Fonda to adopt his "anti-war" stance.

First, it should be recognized that the surveys show that Fonda makes his money (and it is a great deal of money) because of his motion picture appeal to many thousands of the "under 25" age bracket of our population, who flock to see his films.

But what sort of film fare does Fonda present to his youthful audiences? Joan Didion, in a review written for LIFE magazine, describes a scene near the end of a "bike movie," The Wild Angels. "The Angels, led by Peter Fonda, are about to bury one of their number. They have already torn up the chapel, beaten and gagged the preacher and held a wake during which the dead man's girl was raped on the altar and the corpse itself, propped up on a bench in full bike colors, dark goggles over the eyes and a joint between the lips, became the object of necrophilia. Now they stand at the grave, and uncertain how to mark the moment. Peter Fonda shrugs. 'Nothing to say,' he says."

Is brutality, terror, licentiousness, desecration, and the violation of human rights the sort of behavior Fonda would have his youthful followers emulate? If not, why does Fonda appear in pictures which clearly feature immorality as the "in thing?" Does Fonda appear in the films simply to make money? If so, is it his philosophy that one achieves his ends (making money) by any means? It is easy to protest the war in Vietnam on the grounds of brutality, since all wars are brutal, but how can Fonda make his claim when his own films clearly espouse brutality as a way of life? Are his "anti-war" appearances simply a play of his press agents, to get his name mentioned (as we are doing now)? We don't know. Maybe Peter Fonda doesn't know.

An indictment of night social events is that when he average man goes to a party or dance, usually forced to go by his wife, he swears the next morning that he will never go to another.

One of Sikeston's smartest young men was very successful in business and attracted the admiration of his elders until he was about 35 years old. Apparently he was wound up for that age and was not much good after he ran down.

IKE WINS THE 15-YEAR ECONOMY RACE

Who were the Big Government — makers among Presidents since 1954 — the earliest year for which Executive Branch figures have been made available?

All three Presidents seemed incapable of posting decreases in both important areas — payroll and number of personnel in the Executive Branch (which employs 95 % of all federal civilian workers).

President Eisenhower had the best record, according to figures released by the Joint Committee on Reduction of Federal Expenditures. Ike cut down on the number of federal workers by .002% a year from 1954 through 1960 when the number of Executive Branch employees went from 2.43 million to 2.38 million. However, the payroll for the same period jumped 33%, $9.5 billion to $12.6 billion, or about 5.3% per year. For comparison purposes, however, Ike's record still looks good because he held a much lower increase record over a much longer period than did his two successors.

In the three years John Kennedy was in office, 107,029 more workers went on the Executive Branch payroll, a jump of 4.5% from 2.38 million to 2.49 million. The payroll increased 21% in the same period, 7% per year, from $12.6 billion to $15.3 billion.

In 1964, the lights went out in the White House as an economy gesture, and it appeared that the number of Executive Branch employees would follow in like style. They did that first year, dropping about 5,000. But by the end of 1968, the number of employees had jumped a whopping 18%, from 2.49 million to more than 2.94 million. The payroll had increased 46% since President Johnson had assumed office, from $15.3 billion to $22.4 billion, for a 9% per year payroll increase.

"Enlightened business leadership necessitates involvement in all of today's problems," said former U.S. Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor. "No corporation can afford to ignore the condition of our cities, the health of our people, and the quality of life in America."

DARING DOUGLAS. UNLOOPHOLE THYSELF. CBS CAUGHT!

People who say we are, horrors, escalating the war in Viet Nam ought to go on a diet of bird seed for parroting such nonsense; or be committed for losing touch with reality; or take next Thursday's Aeroflot flight to Moscow. It is a tragicomic state of affairs when such phrases — and people — are allowed to roam at will. The Communists started this war, escalated it, and even started several Viet Nams on U.S. campuses through Maoist and Marxist-Leninist student groups. Of course they don't want us to escalate the Viet Nam War and will play the injured party at every chance. The final word on such terminological inexactitudes is that, yes, this is a country of free speech, not of free stupidity or free subversion.

George Gallup sent 75 interviewers all over the country at great expense to himself and his clients to tell the American public what 'twas ever thus: American students are worried about inequities in our national life and that this is an imperfect world. Harvard, Columbia and Berkeley are the results of what happens when we listen too long to the too-sparsely-equipped who would deal with the world through liberal-fashioned educations. Thanks, George, for making the problem worse than it was.

Congress is trying to cover up tax loopholes, but we say, "Congressmen and Supreme Court Justices, nonloophole thyself." The gimmick: Selling private papers and files to libraries, historical groups or a college, and netting a fat tax deduction. Among those who think it's okay is Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, and past and present members of the Senate and House committees which deal with tax laws. The Wall Street Journal hints strongly, with pertinent and factual bunny tracks, that former President Lyndon Johnson may be doing the same. It's an individual choice situation: Some lawmakers say it's hardly proper and the tax laws encourage such "giving" because it contributes to the welfare of the nation. And to the welfare of the donor whose cost was nil or naught, because the taxpayers paid for the papers in the first place.

Undoubtedly seeking to enhance its image as a freedom-loving nation, Red China withdrew a large but undisclosed amount of cash from a Hong Kong bank to finance troublemaking in Malaysia and Singapore. The money was put in the hands of Gen. Jen Yung who commands Red Chinese subversion in Southeast Asia. More than 200 persons were killed in the recent Malaysian race riots. The Hong Kong Star says General Yung's next targets are Burma, Thailand and India.

James Forman wants $500 million in reparations from white churches and synagogues for injustices done to Negroes. The idea is staggering, and considering Mr. Forman's ideological base (SNCC) and its Pavlovian responses to things Marxist over the years, the idea deserves hoots, not howls. One might be more sympathetic to the idea if the Negro community had been asked, but barring that unlikelyhood, sympathy should be spared for those ideologically tainted churchmen who think the demand is deserving.

We received an outraged letter from EBF of Evergreen Park, Ill., who's angry that Dr. M.J. Vernon Smith of Great Britain and Richmond, Va., thinks George Washington was probably broad-hipped and big-breasted. EBF is also upset that UPI saw sufficient merit in Dr. Smith's inanities to report them. EBF is right, for to suggest that the "Father of His Country" was an effeminate old man is the height of gall — even as Harold Wilson continues to practice his most accomplished art — presiding over the death of his country.

The Media: Last week, the Soviets (one scientist) said complimentary things about the Apollo Ten flight, which connotes one friend being friendly to another. The media lapped it up and oozed it through its mikes and wires, and one could almost drool at the love-feast appearance of the report. Intentional or not, the result can be likened to the reading primers of old: See the Communist. He says nice things. The Communists are nice. ...The Columbia Broadcasting System got a knucklerrapping from a House subcommittee which said CMS' "Hunger in America" TV program was, simply stated, sensational, biased and a pack of lies. The subcommittee said the network used "sensational-type material and a complete lack of objectivity" in showing a baby dying of hunger when it was really dying of natural causes. On May 11, 1969, CBS' "Face the Nation" gave a revolutionary forum to SDS' Mike Klonsky who did his Marxist thing on the air. Afterward a member of the Black Panthers told CBS' Washington affiliate: "After we take over, we will protect CBS — you've given us so much help." We hung a title on CBS many May Days ago, and we still say CBS is working hard for the title of "Commissariat of Broadcasting Services."

NEW YORK (AP) — This year marks the 10th anniversary of the formal debut of one of the heroes of history — the American female secretary.

So let's salute the little lady, once known as "Miss Typewriter," then "Tillie the Toller," and now the "Girl Friday."

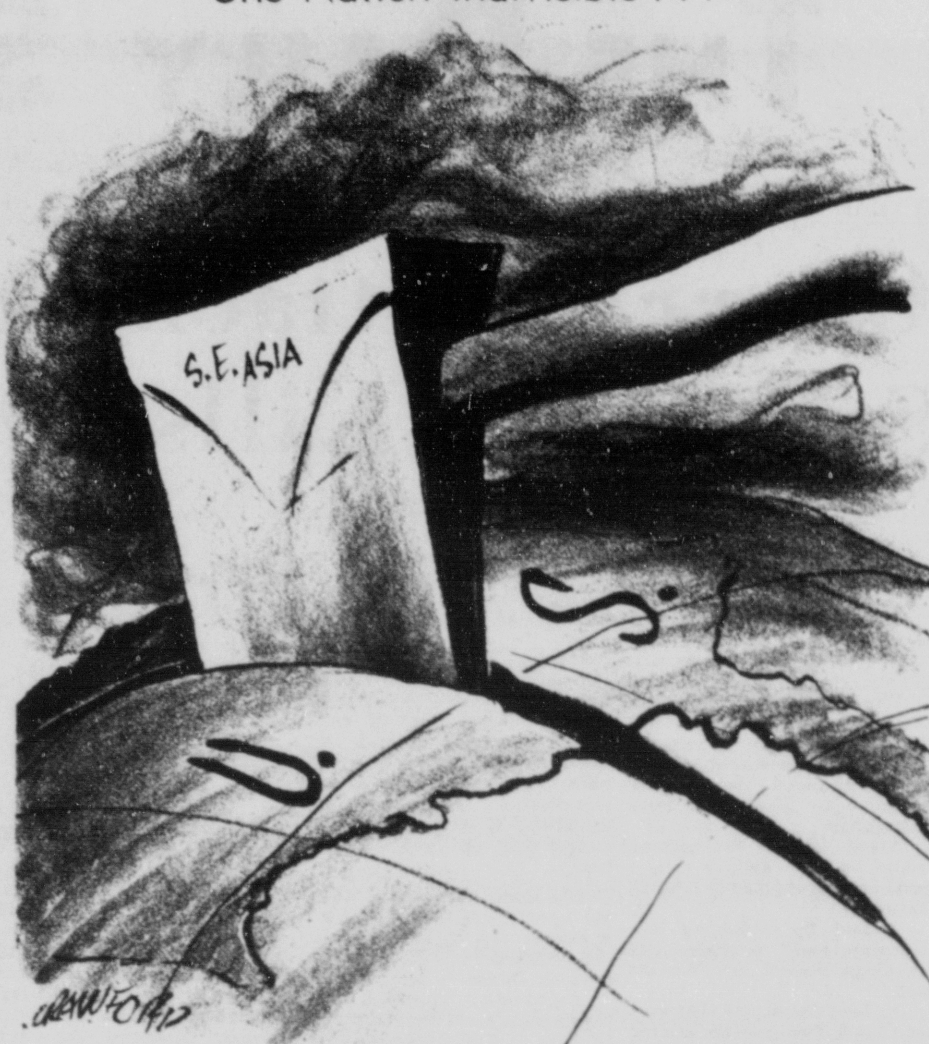

Can you imagine a world without women? Well, that was virtually what the U.S. business office was like back in 1890 when eight young ladies specially trained by the YWCA here marched on the scene.

Male office workers, who wore celluloid cuff protectors and wrote with quill pens, nearly fell off their high stools laughing at these determined girls, prim in long black skirts, high-button shoes and muttonlike white blouses.

But their laughter soon died. The girls proved remarkably efficient at the big, clumsy typewriters of that day.

"By the end of the Gay Nineties only 22 per cent of secretarial jobs were still in male hands," said Robert Murray, an executive with The Edison Voicewriter firm. "And today, of course, an overwhelming majority of the nation's 2 1/2 million or more of the nation's

The airlines have an exceptionally good service to sell. They feel that air travel is relatively safe, inexpensive, and fast.

However, the demand for air transportation has been disappointing. New consumers are not readily accepting what seems to be a superior service. A survey of the situation convinced the airlines that a new approach to advertising was needed. The public no longer has to be convinced of the merits of air travel. Apparently, to sell their services more extensively, the airlines should give the public more reasons for flying.

The new approach to air travel advertising, involves considerably more than boasting of the facilities of a particular airline. It suggests specific places to travel with descriptions of pleasures and benefits which might result. It suggests group tours for business and recreation.

The airline advertising is following the lead of product promotion which has been successful for other types of companies. It is similar to camera advertising which, instead of emphasizing technical features of photographic equipment, describes the joys of viewing home movies.

It is like the best restaurant advertising which suggests occasions for eating out and describes accompanying enjoyment and convenience.

Like other effective retail advertising, new airline appeals to a local audience through local media. More of it is placed in newspapers than in any other medium.

COMMON OWNERSHIP: PRIORITY GOAL FOR RAILROADS

Common ownership is "a priority railroad goal" and is "going to get a big push" from the industry this year, Thomas Goodfellow, president of the Association of American Railroads, told the international assembly of the YMCA's Transportation Department in St. Louis.

Goodfellow noted that "people informed on transportation matters are becoming increasingly aware of the need for transportation which combines the services of the several modes of transport into a one-package service."

Whether it's called diversification or common ownership, he said, "we're talking about a single agency that can move goods by air, rail, road or water, or any combination of these, in the best interests of all parties involved."

HE POINTED OUT that establishment of such service "has been solidly blocked by outdated laws — or by outdated interpretation and administration of those laws."

Railroads, he noted, "want legal freedom to own and operate other modes of transport. There's opposition to the enabling legislation ... but a real transportation system must come for the good of the country."

"I believe it will come," Goodfellow said. "And, when it comes, it'll be good for the railroads."

RAILROADS TODAY, he said, "are in step with advancing technology and ready to play a leading role in the exciting drama of the next decade." But they'll need help.

That help, he said, can come in the form of legislative relief and in the form of money to pay for technological advances and to implement the findings of research now getting under way.

"We'll especially need elastic, healthy attitudes on the part of railroad employees," he added.

"Ethel, however do you and Frank manage to have such a small family? It seems every time I turn around I'm

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A caustic White House memo, intended for internal use only, accuses the Columbia Broadcasting System of "irresponsibility" and questions whether the Federal Communications Commission should investigate.

All that holds back the White House from referring the charges to the FCC, an aide told this column, is concern that the motive might be misunderstood.

Since Vice President Agnew's attack upon the T.V. networks, CBS has been the boldest about continuing its criticism of the Nixon Administration. Some aides fear, therefore, that an FCC investigation would look like an attempt to intimidate CBS.

The White House memo, charging the CBS has been involved in "highly questionable activity," cites these alleged incidents:

The CBS news department (1) faked horror scenes from Vietnam on at least three occasions; (2) planned a "staged invasion" of Haiti; (3) "staged incidents of police brutality" during the 1965 Democratic convention; and (4) arranged to film an illegal "pot party" in Chicago.

"FRAUD BY THE PRESS" The memo suggests that CBS shouldn't be allowed to use "freedom of the press" to get away with "fraud by the press."

Attached to the memo is a report from the Pentagon on the phony horror scenes. The most dramatic was an October 7, 1967, film of a GI attempting to slice the ear off a dead enemy soldier.

Alleges the Pentagon report: "Don Webster and John Smith of CBS were involved in an incident in which a soldier attempted to cut off the ear of a dead enemy soldier with a knife furnished by Smith."

After the film was shown on the Walter Cronkite news show, Specialist George A. Pawlasky was arrested for the deed. Continues the Pentagon report: "Both Smith and Webster were subpoenaed at the trial... but neither appeared... Specialist Pawlasky was found guilty as charged. At the request of the American Embassy, no further action was taken against Smith, who was listed as a principal in the case."

Two years after the ear-cutting episode, the same Don Webster narrated another knife scene. A South Vietnamese soldier was filmed on Nov. 3, 1969, stabbing a captured Viet Cong in the presence of U.S. personnel.

"CUT AND PASTE" JOB The Pentagon report alleges that Webster refused to cooperate with the Army investigation, "claiming protection of news sources."

The investigation "established that the film was taken by a Vietnamese and that Webster was not present during the filming."

The American Embassy later reported that "the CBS film was a 'cut and paste' job involving different locales and personnel. The Army was 'unsuccessful in gaining the assistance of CBS during the investigation. To date, the personnel involved in the incident have not been identified.'"

Again on February 17, 1970, CBS showed a South Vietnamese soldier "covering the face of a Greening's teeth were perfectly good, so a comparison was made with the Navy X-rays. This revealed that the Navy doctors had based their diagnosis on the wrong X-rays."

Captured Newsmen -- Richard Dugman, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter captured by the Viet Cong in Cambodia, never let danger interfere with getting the facts. Colleagues recall that a grenade exploded near his car during the 1965 Dominican civil war. Dugman's two companion journalists dived from the auto into the gutter. Dugman glanced quickly up toward the balcony from which the grenade came, made a brief scribble in his notebook, then dived from the car. Reports filtering out of the Cambodian jungles saw farmers saw Dugman's balding figure being led from his car at gunpoint into the underbrush. He was protesting to his captors, say the reports, that he wanted to jot it all down in his notebook.

There can be no defense for faking the news, and CBS would be better advised to cooperate with the Army in clearing up the allegations.

H.L. Hunt Says

RUSSIA'S ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

The U.S. embassy in Moscow recently received a copy of a secret communist document which reveals that the USSR is experiencing serious economic difficulties.

On January 29, according to this document, Aleksandr Shelepin, head of Soviet Russia's government-run trade union, announced strict new controls on workers because of "the fall in production and the current economic difficulties." The document also included a statement by Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev describing "serious insufficiencies" in the Soviet economy.

Several specific examples of these economic failures were given. Steel production was running far behind its quotas, so that the Soviet government had to buy steel in the West. Last year, the production of grain in Russia was nine million tons less than in 1968, and potato and beet sugar production had virtually collapsed. Soviet factories are now producing less than one pair of shoes per out of the shadows. "Would a gentleman be so kind as to help a poor, hungry fellow who is out of a job? Except for this revolver, I haven't a thing in the world."

factories are now producing less than one pair of shoes per out of the shadows. "Would a gentleman be so kind as to help a poor, hungry fellow who is out of a job? Except for this revolver, I haven't a thing in the world."

failures were "largely irredeemable" and had forced a drastic downward revision in the 1971-1976 development plan. His statements were endorsed by Nikolay Baybakov, chairman of the planning commission, and by Vasily Garbuzov, minister of finance.

These failures, together with the economic problems experienced by Red China, Castro's Cuba and other Communist countries, clearly show that a communist economy can never produce abundance. No controlled status economy can compete with a system which allows personal enterprises to work in freedom, because men who are slaves will never work as well as men who are free. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

What price charisma? Labor's powerful militants set to sweep the nation.

Washington, D.C. — A big man is Mickey Maye, leader of a big fire fighters union. We were talking the other day and I needed him over his threat to call a full fire fighters strike in New York if the police struck and if Mayor Lindsay asked Governor Rockefeller to send in the National Guard.

Michael Maye is tough every inch and ounce of his body — and mind. "Sure," he said, "I've been retorted. 'The only way to deal with the mayor and the administration is to kick them in the teeth.'"

There is a single vignette you have President Nixon's reason for refusing to impose — under his enormous Korean War emergency powers still in effect — any wage and price freeze. It would be but a gesture. No one can hold down American labor, its second and third echelon chiefs and its ever younger rank and file.

Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson once tried and failed, and as President Nixon recently told an old friend of his: "I couldn't either and I'm not even in the party." This was reference to the British Labor party and its American counterpart, the AFL-CIO parapolitical structure.

There are thousands of Mickey Mayes. They are the fighting infantry leaders of the 14 million-member AFL-CIO which so many commentators wash out as torpid or rife with rigor mortis. This deadwood theme has been played pianissimo since Walter Reuther's macabre death.

Certainly "Walter" had charisma and was such a legend that President Nixon lent one of his personal Air Force jets to some of his Cabinet and their aides to fly to the Detroit funeral.

But now there is a danger that the AFL-CIO may in the minds of many be buried with the legend — the theory being that, with "Walter," labor's militancy has gone the way of all flesh. It hasn't.

The difference is that AFL-CIO President George Meany believes you can get more going in the front door of the White House (and occasionally at the rear) than demonstrating in front of it.

He's right. When Richard Nixon drove over to the AFL-CIO Executive Council session on Tuesday, May 12, and Mr. Meany told him, friendly like, that labor thought the administration's economic policies were bankrupt, the President listened. Then both men went to the headquarters front door. And less than 20 minutes after Mr. Nixon departed, the AFL-CIO economists received a call from the White House inviting them to a closed-door economic eyeball-to-eyeball conference on May 25. This, too, is a measure of labor's power.

But that power does roll into the streets, the highways and vineyards of America.

During the AFL-CIO Executive Council session Mr. Meany, tough on the outside, shy and sentimental inside, told his colleagues how horrible he thought was the death of Walter Reuther.

"Walter has spent a good deal of time sniping at me. Well, I'd sure rather have him out there sniping than have this happen."

It takes some high-powered oratorical bullets to pierce George Meany's hide. While all the sniping from all sides — including Moscow's daily Pravda — sent fusillades all about him, AFL-CIO leaders were leading the toughest strikes in 35 years.

Those were the AFL-CIO postal unions which defied the federal government, snarled the mail and won the largest collective bargaining package in history.

The long series of garbage and municipal workers' strikes which have hit such cities as Memphis and Atlanta were AFL-CIO walkouts led by the fire-breathing Jerry Wurf and his American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

This union, growing at the rate of 1,000 a week, has stormed city halls, put its members into the streets, and tied up whole communities.

And what of the AFL-CIO Hospital Employees, local 1199 led by Leon Davis, whose national affiliate is Max Greenberg's Retail, Wholesale and Dept. Store Union, AFL-CIO? They're now handing New York hospital demands which would bring unskilled labor up to $139.50 a week — with fringes included.

This is the union which hit Charleston, S.C. And what of the militant longshoremen who threatened to paralyze that port if the hospital management there did not surrender? It is this international Longshoremen's Assn. which helped crack the nine-month steel workers' copper strike by refusing to unload copper from other lands.

And what of the American Federation of Teachers, whose president went to prison in New Jersey, along with many of his fellow officers for leading an illegal strike? And at this writing, Al Sahkner, leader of the 60,000-member New York Union Federation of Teachers AFL-CIO is doing a bit in a New York jail for similar reasons.

What of the $2.5 million spent by the national AFL-CIO on the five year grape workers' strike? What of I.W. Abel's steelworkers' coming campaign for a four-hour day? What of the new police unionization drives? What about the construction unions' fantastic wage demands? What about the long "coordinated" General Electric strike? The list of tough operations can roll on. And there's lots more to come everywhere.

The AFL-CIO is militant, all right. All the way from the Hill, where their strength and their strength alone defeated Judges Haynsworth and Carswell, down into the southeast corner of Texas: Rio Grande Valley and up into New York's agricultural areas.

This movement is growing. There's physical evidence. Starting in Sept. 1971, it will begin demolishing the Hotel Lafayette which is next door to its own headquarters. Then it will extend its current building up the block adding 57,000 square feet for its departmental staffs — and a computer system.

There will be room for servicing millions of new members. No one else has a short. But fire fighter Mickey Maye may have a point or two. Militancy isn't always spoken in the Queen's English.

Girl, 16, Feels Loyalty For Friends

Who 'Blow Grass' and 'Drop Acid'

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 and worried. Most of my friends smoke pot. Some of them have freaked out on LSD. I don't touch any of it. My folks got upset once when they found an ordinary cigarette butt in my room. They have a good opinion of me and I'd hate to let them down.

Every weekend I wind up with kids who are blowing grass or dropping acid. I realize if they get busted and I'm with them, I will be hauled in and charged, too. This scares me. It would kill my folks. The drug laws are lousy in this state and some good kids have gotten themselves bugged up because they want to show the authorities they have no respect for unjust laws. Please don't tell me to make new friends, I can't. These are the kids I grew up with and I dig them, except for the way they mess with drugs. What should I do? — Loyal Lynn.

Dear L. L.: If you insist on hanging around with a crowd that blows grass, drops acid and defies the law, be prepared to accept the consequences. Call it loyalty if you want to. I call it stupidity and short-sightedness.

The law is going to do more busting starting now. Making criminals out of sick people is, in my opinion, a poor approach to the problem, but when the citizenry becomes frightened and fear takes over, rationality loses out.

There are no easy answers to this one. We cannot afford to turn our country over to a generation of half-stoned pot heads. Nor can we allow potential achievers to fry their brains with LSD, speed and heroin. Unfortunately, a problem that should be handled by physicians is winding up more and more in the hands of the police. So brace yourself. The situation is going to get worse before it gets better.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a message for the young woman who adopted my child. I don't know who she is or where she is,

I'll bet she reads Ann Landers. Will you please print this?

Dear Friend: It was just a few years ago that I gave you my baby. I knew then as I know now, it was the only thing to do. I wanted her to have every advantage of life. I knew I couldn't give her what she was entitled to.

You and your husband wanted a child. The people in charge of the adoption told me as much as they could without revealing your identity. I was certain you would give my little girl oceans of love and that she would have the kind of upbringing every child deserves. I didn't have her long—but I knew she was a very good baby, in perfect health, and beautiful, too. It took more strength to give her up than I thought I had, but I think the good Lord for giving me that strength because I know in my heart it was the right thing to do.

Last year I married a wonderful man. Soon I will have a baby of my own. But I shall never forget my first born. I'll always shed a few quiet tears on her birthday, and wonder where she is, what she looks like and what she is doing. I will always love her—and I will love you, too, for giving her what I could not. May God watch over you and my little girl. — No City No State No Initials.

Dear Friend: Thank you for a beautiful letter. I wouldn't dream of printing a clue to your identity. Thousands of women will believe your letter was meant for them. And I wouldn't want it any other way.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage—What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DAEOC HEALTH and Family Service, under the direction of Marilyn Cox, center, is conducted by Mrs. Lillie Webb, right, in northern Scott county and Mrs. Bettie Redd in the southern part of the county.

Family Service Included In DAEOC Program

Family service 1-3-18 isoc DAEOC Health & Family Service, under the direction of Marilyn Cox, has many functions; with the main concentration being based on health education. Recipients of Family Service must qualify under the DAEOC E.O.O. Poverty Guideline. These persons have many problems in the field of health, for example: (1) Over crowded conditions in their homes—large families (2) lack of knowledge and information on prevention of disease and the control of illness (3) lack of proper medical care—due to lack of adequate income (4) lack of transportation to medical services.

DAEOC doesn't have the solutions or answers to these problems and neither does any other person or agency, these are age old problems and more than likely will be problems forever in the future to come.

However, it is very important for each community to take care of their own—emphasis is being placed on group meetings, in homes, churches, Area Opportunity Centers, and other public meeting places. Health Education is a matter of getting these people together for instructions and information. Available through DAEOC Family Services are classes in Cancer education, child care, prenatal care, sanitation, nutrition, narcotics, alcoholism, and senior citizen activities. Any

by Maureen B. Klein

MAUREEN B. KLEIN Outstanding Citizenship Awards were presented to two students in each class at a special Middle School Assembly on Tuesday, May 19. Winners were: Jeannie Britt and Jimmy Matthews in the eighth grade, Kay Phillips and Bruce Lawrence in the seventh grade, Missy Shackelford and Jimmy Lenderman in the sixth grade.

This past year emphasis has been placed on making the boys and girls aware of the need for kindness and understanding in regard to others. Also, I hope we have made a slight move toward individual responsibility and respect for the other fellow but most important self-respect. All the teachers and administrators are aware that some of our lively students are truly outstanding; others act as though they've never been shown how to behave. In order to call attention to and give recognition for positive values, monthly class assemblies have been held where five students from each class have been placed on the Citizenship Honor Roll. All those that had been chosen during the year were eligible for the final award—Citizenship of the Year. Here is how the selections take place. Each month every teacher could nominate five students. The compiled names were submitted to the entire faculty for approval. Any entire could be eliminated by a teacher or administrator if they were aware of behavior which would make the Citizenship Award inappropriate. Those remaining on the list were voted on by members of their class. The final selection for the year award was also made by the students. The best thing about the award has been the way the entire student body has been represented in the selections and how proud each person has been of his reward. No one group dominated the monthly awards in any class; all the students were well represented.

I've been asked why no Top Ten Percent Awards, who decided against it? The executive committee of the P.T.A. made the decision. They felt it is more important to stress positive character traits than to reward top grades at this level of education. Not that scholastic achievement isn't important, we all know it is but difficulty arises in determining method of choosing the top 10%. Do we use Achievement Tests as are done in the elementary schools for S Awards? Do we use class grades which may not have consistent values? Depends on teacher just what the A, B, or C means. Have the boys and girls been placed in correct groups levels so that he can do work expected of them? In the 6th and 7th grades the students spend most of their time with only 2 teachers which is fine in many respects but perhaps your child doesn't respond well to one of his teachers. He may be bright and capable but not always makes Top Ten Percent. By far the majority of students say they cheat on tests. Another reason why top grades are sometimes of doubtful value. These are some of the criticisms it has received. I've always thought it was a great idea and still do, but I can see there are valid objections. In High School Scholastic Achievement is emphasized. Here at Middle School we are hoping to build healthy attitudes.

TUNA CHEEZER PLEASERS ... a touch of imagination ... a spark of an idea ... a dash of creativity ... pleasing pleasers

TUNA CHEEZER PLEASERS

1 cup (6 1/2-oz. can) drained tuna
1/2 cup condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/4 cup chopped stuffed green olives or pitted ripe olives
2 teaspoons instant minced onion or 1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1 can (8 oz.) Pillsbury Refrigerated Quick Crescent Dinner Rolls
1/2 cup crushed corn chips
1/2 cup (5 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Oven 400 degrees
4 to 6 Main Dish Servings or 24 Snacks

In small bowl, combine tuna, soup, olives, onion and Tabasco sauce; set aside. Separate crescent dough on ungreased cookie sheet or 15x10x1-inch jelly roll pan; place rectangles together overlapping edges. Firmly press perforations and edges to seal (this prevents separation during baking). Press or roll out dough to form 15x10-inch rectangle; pinch edges to form a rim. Spread tuna mixture over dough. Sprinkle with corn chips and cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 18 to 22 minutes until crust is golden brown.

Tips: Reheat, loosely covered with foil, at 400 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes until heated through. To make ahead, prepare, cover and refrigerate up to 2 hours before baking. Bake as directed.

DRAG RACING is a growing sport across the nation and is proved here in Southeast Missouri where race fans have the choice of two stripe's to vie for prize money and trophies or see the funny cars turn in better than 200 miles an hour in an eighth or quarter mile. With the opening of Malden Dragways last Sunday, SEMO race fans have a big weekend in store for themselves as they can start out Saturday night at Interstate Dragways, North of Sikeston and compete or watch Sunday at the Malden stripe. One familiar site at both stripe's is the above pictured Camaro from Sikeston. It is owned by Terry Lee, Mark Ellis, and Mike Woodall. The car will be featured in a match race Sunday at Malden.

Cradic Signs Three To SEMO Cage Grants

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Efforts to bring winning basketball back to Southeast Missouri State College, after three consecutive losing seasons, have begun with the signing of three freshman prospects, one from O'Fallon, one from St. Louis and one from West Paducah, Ky. Bob Cradic, who was appointed head basketball coach at Southeast Missouri State on April 30, identified the two from Missouri as Dennis Maritz, a 6-6 lad who averaged 21.8 points a game last season, and Gregg Fingerhut, a 6-1 guard described as a "real floor leader."

The Kentucky prospect is Brent Gregston, also 6-1, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Gregston, Jr. of Route 1, West Paducah. He played for Heath High School last season.

Fingerhut, who averaged 10 points a game at Lindbergh High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fingerhut of 12100 Regency Dr., St. Louis. Maritz, who played at Fort Zumwalt High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Maritz of 12 DiFranco Lane, O'Fallon. Maritz won three letters in basketball at Fort Zumwalt and had a career average of 14 points and 10 rebounds per game. He was named to several all-star teams, served as president of his junior class, and was a member of the Key Club, a service organization sponsored by Kiwanis International.

Maritz also compiled three letters in baseball, but he was outdone in this sport by Gregston, who won four letters in that sport and was voted the team's most valuable player this spring. He was also voted the most valuable player on Heath's 1969-70 basketball team.

Gregston had the best free throw percentage on the team for both his junior and senior years and the best field goal percentage for 1969-70. He was chosen for the All-District and All-County teams and he holds the school's scoring record for one game of 42 points.

The West Paducah schoolboy was voted a senior favorite, was selected last year to go to Kentucky Boys' State, and was vice president of his freshman, sophomore, and junior classes. Fingerhut played for a team which had a 30-1 record last season, and he was named to several all-star teams. He holds the assist record at Lindbergh of 204. Like Maritz and Gregston, he indicated an interest in studying physical education at Southeast Missouri State. Gregston is undecided on his vocational objective.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - A church bell could be heard in the distance. Aside from an occasional bellow from a truck freighter as it roared by the Charlotte Motor Speedway out on route 29, the church bell was the only sound that told you the world was alive.

On pitroad of the speedway was a red and gold Dodge Daytona Charger. A small group of men were clustered around the car. Talk was quiet. Nobody was really doing anything at all. It was sort of like waiting on the sergeant to tell you to move out.

Then out of the Union 76 service building walked a man wearing a new driver's suit and everybody around the car came alive. It's been three years since he had driven a race car, but this was his track and he was ready. The car is number 28. The driver was Freddy Lorenzen.

Lorenzen did what most of us would like to do. He retired at the age of 32. He was called the "Golden Boy of Racing" because of his wavy blond hair and money he put in the bank. He has won 12 super-speedway events. That's a record. His closest rivals are Richard Petty and Lee Roy Yarborough with nine each. In his 6 1/2 year racing career, Freddy won $398,948.

On April 24, 1967 Fearless Freddy Lorenzen hung up his racing goggles. He said he wanted to nurse his ulcer and he had invested wisely in the stock market so he was set financially. A lot of people said Freddy just got scared.

The rumor mill has had Lorenzen coming back to stock car racing since the first event after his retirement. He never big names in racing's past. showed up. Last Sunday here at Sunday will tell if he will have Charlotte he climbed behind the any chance of being a big name wheel of a new racer and went in the future.

11,769 Turn Out to Boo Allen, See Cards Lose 4-3

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—They sang Richie Allen's song at Connie Mack stadium Thursday night—BOO!

Allen made his first appearance here since the Philadelphia Phillies dealt the controversial star to the St. Louis Cardinals. An unusually large midweek crowd of 11,769 turned out, many carrying banners.

"Allen MVP" hung over one railing. "How do you like your new babysitter, Richie?" read another.

Allen, whose stormy career with the Phillies included a fist fight with a teammate, missed planes, missed games, suspensions, and a running feud with the booing fans, took his return to town in stride.

Asked how he felt about fighting in the stands, beer cans tossed on the field and the chorus of boos which greeted him, Allen said, "You have to expect that kind of stuff here. I'm used to it."

There were cheers and applause too, for the 28-year-old Allen. At times it was hard to distinguish whether there were more boos than cheers. Allen gave his detractors and his supporters their innings.

In his first time at bat, he hit into a double play. The second time up he lined to center, and he struck out on his third appearance against Phillies' left hander Woody Fryman.

Then came the ninth inning with the Phillies leading 3-0. With one out and a runner at first, Allen laced a home run into the left field seats. The Cards scored another and tied the game. The Phillies, however, rallied in their half of the ninth to win 4-3 on Tony Taylor's two-out single which scored John Braggs from second base.

Did Allen get a charge out of stifling the boo-birds with his dramatic home run?

"Nah," he mumbled in a reluctant interview with reporters after the game. Speaking so softly that you had to stick your ear in his face to hear, Allen added, "I done that here before. You've got to win."

Allen and Fryman agreed that the home run came off of a slider down and in. Fryman said of Allen, "He's one of the best hitters in baseball. He knows more about hitting, more about pitching than any other hitter in the National League. He's not just brute force. He's a scientific hitter."

Allen's 14th home run of the season was his third off Philadelphia pitching. He hit a game winning homer, and another that helped the Cards come from behind to win a game in St. Louis last week over his three runs in the sixth off St. Louis starter Steve Carlton, who hit in the face below the right eye by a ground smash in the ninth inning St. Louis rally. He left the game and was taken to Temple University Hospital for X-Rays.

Allen's mother, Mrs. Era Allen from Wampum, Pa., and his wife, Barbara, were in the stands. His mother was asked how she reacted to the booing of Money's seventh home run, one more than Ooney hit all last to small people. Money, incidentally, was

Reinert to Address State Seniors

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Rev. Paul C. Reinert, president of Saint Louis University for 21 years and one of the foremost spokesmen for Catholic higher education in this country, will give the baccalaureate address Sunday at Southeast Missouri State College.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of Academic Hall on the campus. Father Reinert will be introduced by Dr. Mark Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State.

Two Cape Girardeau clergymen closely connected with the college will also have parts in the program. The Rev. Thomas Messer of the Baptist Student Union will give the invocation, and Father Bertram Vedder of the Catholic Newman Center will deliver the benediction.

Invited to attend the program are the 35 master's degree candidates and the more than 900 seniors who will receive bachelor's degrees at the college's 96th commencement on May 31. Faculty members of the college will also be in the audience, and many of the degree candidates will bring their families and friends. The general public is also welcomed.

The faculty members and graduating students, dressed in colorful academic robes, will enter and leave the ceremony in an academic procession while the college symphony orchestra plays a march written especially for the occasion. The composer is Dr. Robert Jones, associate professor of music at Southeast Missouri State.

Father Reinert, born in Boulder, Colo., earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Saint Louis University and became associated with the institution as an administrator in 1944 when he was chosen dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

This was the same year he received his Ph.D. in educational administration from the University of Chicago, and four years after he was ordained to the priesthood.

In 1948 the educator was appointed academic vice president of the university, and he was elevated to the presidency the next year. As of now, of the 338 Catholic colleges and universities in the United States, only one other person has served a longer tenure as president.

Under Father Reinert's leadership, Saint Louis University has prospered and become well-recognized for high academic standards throughout the country. The university's current enrollment is 11,300 and its faculty numbers 1,630.

In 1958, under the president's leadership, a 10-year development program was launched. It succeeded in raising $53 million. In January of this year, Father Reinert unveiled a new five-year campaign to raise $35 million, primarily for student aid and faculty development. The president is also currently leading the university in an intensive examination of its curricular and fiscal structure.

Father Reinert, who has received honorary degrees from 14 colleges and universities, has served on national educational commissions under three presidents. He is active in numerous educational groups and has held offices in many of them.

He is a former president of the Missouri Association of Colleges and Universities, the Association of Urban Universities, and the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He is currently president of the National Catholic Educational Association and the Jesuit Educational Association.

Father Reinert has also been very active in the civic affairs of St. Louis. He has served as co-chairman of the mayor's Commission on Equal Employment Opportunities, as a member of the Citizens' Job Opportunity Commission, and as a member of the board of directors of the Civic Alliance for Housing and the City Art Museum.

He has been in the forefront of the redevelopment of midtown St. Louis.

A St. Louis newspaper named Father Reinert "Man of the Year" in 1963, and he has gathered numerous other honors, including the University of Chicago Alumni Medal for distinguished service in his chosen field.

The baccalaureate program will mark the start of the final countdown for Southeast Missouri State seniors. Final examinations begin Monday (May 24) and run through Thursday (May 28). Graduation is set for 7 p.m. May 31 at Houck Stadium.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The post high school, Institute of Technology, started by the Board of Education couple of years ago, has grown to the extent that it is now enrolling 109 students who are taking one, two or more courses.

The areas in which these high school graduates are getting job skills are: drafting, electronics, printing technology, data processing and secretarial science. Twenty-nine are full-time students, that is taking a full-time schedule of classes, and 80 are enrolled part-time.

About half of these post high students are veterans whose expenses are at least partially defrayed by the Veterans Administration under the GI Bill. The Veterans Administration sends us the names of area servicemen who are about to be discharged from the service and usually we can contact them about the possibility of this training before they are released from the armed forces. Already this year one soldier now serving in Hawaii and one from Germany are enrolled for September classes and have gotten early releases because of this training opportunity.

This post high school technology institute, equivalent in most areas to two years of college, is fully financed by the federal government and tuition charges paid by the students. There are no direct costs to local taxpayers. Jim Cornett is the Director of this program.

It is possible that if we can maintain the same quality of training which has been done so far, that this program could eventually develop into a full-time local community college. This would require the addition of certain academic courses which could, if a student desired, be transferred to other educational institutions. Some academic, vocationally oriented courses are already taught, for example, mathematics related to the job skill which the student is learning and technical English, also job related. Not only would a strong community college, with heavy emphasis on vocational subjects, be of value to a majority of students in this community and surrounding areas, but would also add population growth and have a marked impact toward attracting industry and encouraging economic growth. A start has already been made. It will be interesting to see if the community is willing to follow up.

In 1900, there were 15,500,000 elementary and secondary aged children enrolled in the nation's public schools. Last year, in the 1969-70 school year, there were 47,238,000.

In 1969-70, the median years of school completed by adults 25 years of age or over, was 12.1.

In 1900, 11.3% of the population 15 years old or older, was illiterate. In 1960, the latest year for which figures are available, only 2.4% of the population was illiterate.

The national average per pupil cost for the 1969-70 school year was $766. Missouri's state average per pupil cost was $627.75. Our cost in this school district was still lower at $573.87, or $192.13 less than the national average. We simply didn't have any more money or the educational program could have been better, because as in about everything else, money pays for quality.

The Science Research Associates test results, given each year to elementary children, were late in being returned to us and consequently, some parents may have already inquired about their children's progress as gauged by these tests. However, the results are now in and we invite parents to check with the teachers if they are interested in this particular measure.

In cooperation with the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, our Board of Education has trained health service workers in 17 different programs since last September, including licensed practical nurses and nurses aides. The Missouri Division of Employment Security also assists in the selection process by referring eligible and qualified candidates for training.

We would suggest that employers who are looking for well-trained and skilled employees in most any area, get in touch with Roy Brown, who is the Placement Director for the Area Vocational School. We can recommend all of those who successfully completed our vocational programs as having a degree of information and skill, which should make them acceptable to almost any employer.

Poor More Concerned With Daily Problems

COLUMBIA — The public media may overemphasize riots, discrimination and police brutality — critical implications that cannot be ignored — but a majority of the hard-core poor are more concerned with problems related to housing, jobs, and day-to-day existence.

That conclusion was drawn in "The Badge of Poverty," publication of the Rehabilitation Research Institute at the University of Missouri after a survey in the St. Louis poverty area.

The study was designed to probe into some of the important human dimensions that lie behind the badge of poverty in belief that a better understanding of needs and concerns as expressed by the poor is crucial to development of remedial strategies and programs.

The report was prepared by Dr. Joseph T. Kuncie and Corrine S. Cope, members of the education faculty, Dr. Carl E. Block of the marketing faculty, and David Hartson, graduate student at UMC, and was based on information obtained in random interviews in 55 city blocks and "several street corners where people tended to congregate" in St. Louis.

Findings in the home and on the street different in some respect. Screened out were interviews in households where annual income was greater than $4,000.

The ghetto residents blamed the "establishment" for a substantial proportion of ghetto problems, although they blamed themselves for more than half the problems they mentioned, the study indicated.

Issues such as discrimination and police brutality were seldom mentioned; of more concern were the issues of jobs, landlords, delinquency and even garbage.

Personal motivation was perceived as a major solution for "others" in solving problems, although it was not seen as being applicable to their own immediate situations. More money frequently was cited as the most logical solution to their own difficulties.

Remedial education was not seen as a critical factor by the residents, with less than five per cent indicating that education would personally help their situation.

Although only 15 per cent were currently employed, almost all had previous work experience and a majority indicated satisfaction with current or previous employment. Almost half of those not working indicated they were looking for employment, but employment agencies were perceived as more helpful in providing job training and schooling than in locating jobs.

The ghetto residents indicated the necessity of increased job opportunities, not only for themselves but also for others, and almost all indicated that the government should take a more active role in solving employment problems.

The young black male was most concerned about job opportunities; older and less educated interviewees were more constrained in their attitudes and placed blame for problems on ghetto residents themselves rather than on the establishment.

Individuals living in households with the most income and having higher levels of educational attainment appeared to be more openly frustrated by ghetto life than others.

In the study in the lowest income area of St. Louis, 82 per cent of the interviewees were black; over a third were over 50 years of age; family structure was fragmented; 83 per cent had lived in St. Louis for over 10 years and consequently were "trapped" and not "mobile."

The blacks had higher education levels than whites, yet their rate of employment and levels of income were so different than those of the whites. Educational attainment was limited, although the percentage of younger interviewees who were high school graduates was almost seven times that of persons over 50.

The economic picture was extremely bleak. Only one household in two reported an employed member. Per capita income for members of households averaged $50 per month. Expenditures for food averaged less than 70 cents per person per day. The largest percentage of income (53 per cent) was derived from wages and salaries; the amounts from Aid for Dependent Children and general welfare equalled only 18 per cent of the total household income, or $9.41 per month per household member.

Channels of communication can reach the ghetto area. Radio and television ownership was high and newspapers and magazines were used, although not as extensively as electronic media. But knowledge about specific projects designed for the poor, such as the food stamp program, was limited and points to serious communication failures. Too, a person's education affected his media experience. The better educated spent more time in reading and in television viewing.

Among other findings: Shopping habits were limited chiefly to stores within walking distance; popular songs to the contrary, only 23 per cent of the households had automobiles; those employed and those unemployed but looking for work were comparable with respect to age and education; the unemployed not looking for work were older and had less education.

Oddly, the proportion of people out of work looking for jobs was much greater in the street sample than in the household sample, a finding suggesting that unemployment and substandard employment rates may be vastly higher than generally available figures would indicate.

Those with the most income were more likely to voice attitudes and concerns similar to middle-class Americans.

From the study, the report concludes public and other traditional agencies or organizations do not reach the bulk of the inner-city poor, yet the poor appear to be responsive to increased efforts and a more aggressive stance by governmental agencies to reach them.

Income supplements or maintenance programs that might be developed for the total inner-city poor could be extremely expensive. Less than half the total income reported came from governmental sources; if maintenance programs were fully implemented, one might speculate about the general inflationary spiral that might be set off and the real possibilities that low-income groups would still remain at a severe disadvantage.

Increased inner-city strife can be expected with increased educational attainment and income supplements if parallel increases in other economic and social opportunities do not occur.

Mass media does reach the poor, but many governmental programs do not fully utilize these media to "sell" special projects to the disadvantaged.

No single approach can solve the complex problems of inner-city poor. Numerous complementary and interlocking programs are needed. Currently many programs appear to be geared more to the needs of inner-city unemployed females than males.

Lots of Bread

In the United States about one-third of each year's wheat crop is milled into flour, from which about 15.5 billion pounds of bread are produced — 90 per cent of it enriched bread, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Conscience Fund

In 1811, during Madison's administration, the "conscience fund" was started by an unknown person who sent an anonymous letter containing five dollars since he had, he claimed, defrauded the government of that sum. The government has received more than $500,000 from citizens in conscience money. This is applied to the general fund in the Treasury.

"A CITIZEN WHEREVER WE SERVE"

Barker Editor Speaks Of Memories As Staffer

THE SNEIOR YEAR is both a sad and a happy experience. It is a time to say "but this is the last time we'll..." and "I can't wait 'till college" all in one breath. 1969-'70 has been a school term full of outstanding events which sometimes don't come along in the sum of 10 such terms.

For me, the first of these events was being named editor of the Bulldog Barker. I was, in my own opinion, the least likely candidate. I was probably the most surprised of all to read Trisha Beck -- editor. On that day I think each of the members of the staff made a silent vow to make this year's paper the best yet.

In the beginning we were strictly green when it came to the proceedings of putting out a Barker. Mrs. Statler would sit at the desk and explain how our first trip to the Standard would be. Try as we would to understand, the concept of waxing copy and putting it on big, white sheets of paper was incomprehensible. Then, after that momentous visit to the Standard, we all knew that the waxer and long, blond hair definitely were not made to mix!

That seemed like a long afternoon, but I'll never forget how proud we all were when we saw Barker, 1970 -- edition 1 in front of our eyes. Incidentally, the fact that the picture of the senior ring was upside down was due to circumstances beyond our control.

Perhaps you are unaware of how the paper is put together as we were. Here is an example of seventh hour in the life of a journalist:

1) Bell rings, report to class and greet Mrs. Statler with all sorts of GREAT news.

2) Find out what "goodies" are assigned to members of the staff.

3) The trek begins.

4) Run to "G" building to inquire about a vocational department story.

5) Make way to the band building to tell various choir members that they're to have a picture snapped after school.

6) Rush back to the classroom and start the fingers tap, tap, tapping on the typewriter keys until time for the announcements.

7) Watch out for the stampede of students who rushing makes its way to the room for pictures demanding "do me first, I'm in a hurry" all the while.

8) Go home and take a nap.

It's really surprising to find out all the hams in Sikeston high school who love to read their names in print and see their pictures in the Barker. You know, the staff members seem to be the worst hams of all!

Weeks passed and we found ourselves quite well versed in Barker publishing. Besides this, we started to recognize the unique personalities of the people with whom we worked. Probably if you asked each staff member an outstanding characteristic of another he would barely have to scratch his head to reply. We've all become incredibly close and we've shared experiences that won't be soon forgotten. These "work but still have fun" relationships are perhaps the most lasting of all.

Now I would like to thank all the students who were so willing to answer roving reporter questions, contribute to the literary column, guess the mystery photos and name scrambles, and be student spotlight and mystery baby (how very willing you were for the latter opportunities).

To the staff of '71 I wish you the good times, the cooperation (?), and the success we feel we have attained. I certainly hope that you gain as much as members of the staff as we did. Oh, and also, take good care of Mrs. Statler for us!

-----Trisha Beck

SHS Seniors Take Time To Remember Past Years

WITH THE RINGING OF THE FINAL BELL through the halls of SHS today will come the end of an era. We the members of the class of 1970 will become graduates and the glorious days of being seniors will come to a close.

As the year nears its end, we will take time to reminisce, to think back to events and people which have made this year and past years so meaningful. As in all things, there were both sad and happy times, the memories of which will remain forever imbedded in our minds.

High school days are filled with activities which will be remembered, cherished, and reserved for the uncertain years of the future.

Football games and other athletic events, homecoming and Red Pepper dances, decorations, performances and achievements are of great significance to all of us who have attended school "neath the Red and the Black."

The senior year is spent having fun, trying things never before attempted, and doing things for the last time. For us, everything that happens during our final year takes on special meaning.

The passing of each day results in the realization that never again will we be able to relieve these precious days or change our actions. There is no NEXT year, for in a year's time, we will be settled into a new and very different phase of our lives. Our year at SHS will be only fond memories which cannot be altered, and so we make the most of everything we do.

Perhaps we of the class of 1970 have not accomplished as much as our predecessors; perhaps we have not done as much as we could for the school or community. But we did our best; we tried.

And for that reason, hopefully we will be remembered by the students of SHS as a class which stuck together; a class with a great deal of spirit and pride in its school.

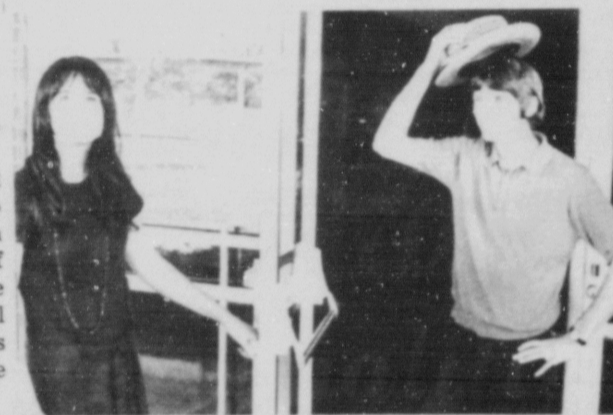

Yes, this is the way we would like to be remembered on that day when the strains of our school song are played for the last time. We of the CLASS OF '70 did our best and we loved every minute of it!

Seniors Remember Highlights '70

Another school year has ended. Students cheer, teachers dream idly of the warm summer months and the rest they will receive. For the seniors of 1970 this year is special because it is a turning point in their lives. They will look back upon it with special fondness, and perhaps even a tear or two will be shed.

Memories of this year will never die in the minds of the graduating class. They will always think of the happy times, and the times they were not so happy will be conveniently forgotten.

What do they have to remember? What were those special times that will remain so vivid in their memories?

Perhaps it will be that first football game. Oh, the team SHS played against is not important, even the score will probably be forgotten, but the excitement, the thrill of it all will linger on.

Remember the marching band? Remember the first time all those colorfully dressed students marched proudly upon the field and spelled out the letters SHS? These are happy times that cannot be forgotten.

September was a good month. The carnival came to town in September, or was it October? Who cares? Everyone will remember the cotton candy, the scrambler, the octopus, and all those crooked but fun games they played with such childish enthusiasm.

This is what makes this year so special, so different from any other year, the childish enthusiasm. Seniors knew that after this year they would no longer be looked upon as children.

This makes them happy, but also a little sad. Childhood was fun. It was gay and carefree. There were no wars except those wars that were played in one's back yard with sticks and toy guns.

Yes, the carnival will certainly be remembered. On Friday night the city selected the new Miss Sikeston for 1970. She was a senior.

Remember the tears she shed when retiring queen, Belinda Morris, placed the crown upon Susan's pretty head? It was a grand night for the seniors, a night to remember.

Remember the holidays, Christmas and Thanksgiving? They were special times to everyone, and this year the ground was covered with a thick, white blanket of snow at Christmas. Remember, seniors?

Remember the first Red Popper dance? How beautiful it all was! Nobody seemed to mind the crisp bite in the air that night. In fact everyone seemed to enjoy it too.

Basketball season was wonderful, too. SHS cheerleaders led the school in enthusiasm and seemed to spark every game with excitement. Weren't the games fun?

How can anyone forget the snow? Some might forget the bitter cold and the slippery walks, but none can forget the snowball fights and the beauty of freshly fallen snow. It was a grand winter, wasn't it? Perhaps it was a little bad, but that is not important, so it is best forgotten.

Remember the holidays, Christmas and Thanksgiving? They were special times to everyone, and this year the ground was covered with a thick, white blanket of snow at Christmas. Remember, seniors?

Hard-Pressed Demos
Seek Air Time for Fund Raising Appeals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financially pressed Democratic Party asked the Federal Communications Commission today to require that broadcasters sell air time for political fund raising appeals.

In a brief filed with the FCC, the Democratic National Committee said it planned a radio and television solicitation of contributions to repay its 1968 election campaign debts and to replenish the party coffers.

But it said it was unable to purchase air time for its appeals from a number of networks and other broadcasters because of various company policies.

Steps to Take In Considering Trade School

JEFFERSON CITY — Four steps a student should take before enrolling in a trade or professional school were listed by the Office of Attorney General John C. Danforth today.

A number of complaints by disappointed students and dissatisfied parents have been received by the consumer protection division, reports Chief Counsel Christopher "Kit" Bond.

"Almost all of the complaints could have been avoided if the student had taken four simple steps before he and his parents signed up for the school:

1) Check with your high school counselor to see that you have the aptitude for the training to be offered by the school.

2) Visit the school to see that it has the facilities and the equipment you want.

3) Ask for references of students who are attending and who have graduated from the school; talk with these students about their experiences and their evaluation of the school.

4) Ask prospective employers if the school offers the type of training they want and if the graduates of the school have been satisfactorily trained.

"The money you spend to further your education can be the best investment you ever make or it can be money wasted. Take the precaution to find out which it will be," Bond advised.

$132 in Fines In City Court

EAST PRAIRIE — A total of $132 in fines were levied in city court by Judge J. Marvin Bryan.

A charge of public intoxication brought a $50 fine to Jap Matthews and a $20 fine to Cotton Ray.

Iva Lee Griffin was fined $7 for having no city sticker.

A $55 fine was levied against Dale Griffin for driving while drinking.

Egg Production Gains One Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egg production totaled 5.9 billion during April, a gain of one per cent from a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

The number of laying hens averaged 37.6 million during the month, a gain of two per cent from April 1969, the Crop Reporting Board said.

Bond Says Audit by State Most Costly Than by Private Firm

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It costs from $15,000 to $25,000 for the state auditor to check the accounts of one relatively small Missouri county, Christopher (Kit) Bond said Tuesday night in a speech in suburban Normandy.

Yet private auditing firms check the records of populous St. Louis county for no more than $22,000, the Republican candidate for auditor said. Bond also is an assistant attorney general.

The counties the auditor checks range up to $70 million assessed valuation while St. Louis county's assessed valuation last year was $2.5 billion.

In 1950, New Mexico's Lobos visited West Point for a football game for the first time and lost 31-0. This season the score was closer, Army winning 31-14.

RAILROAD GIFT: A BELL FOR OSYKA

OSYKA, MISS. — When the Illinois Central Railroad presented its Osyka, Miss., station bell to the Town of Osyka, Little Austin Lofton III was on hand for the ceremony. Austin is the great, great grandson of Isaac W. Cutler, the Mississippi pioneer who first used the bell on his farm and later gave it to IC for use on its Osyka station. For nearly 100 years the bell was rung to assemble volunteer firemen and to announce such important news as the end of two world wars. At 11:00 a.m. each day it was rung to give townspeople the correct time. The bell was rung officially for the first time in two years at the April 17 presentation in Osyka—and the good news it clanged out was the safe return of the Apollo 13 astronauts.

If You Were the Judge

Didn't Own Property,
Must Pay Sales Fee

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Hap, hazard Hap signed a contract with an auctioneer. Under the terms of the agreement, the broker was to receive a commission for selling a piece of land, which Hap optimistically called a Bit O' Heaven, and Hap agreed to sign the deed when the time came to transfer title to the new owner.

When that time came, however, Hap discovered his chagrin that he had gotten things mixed up. It seemed he didn't own his Bit O' Heaven. What he did own was a headache. The auctioneer sued him for his commission which was quite sizable.

"When George Washington made a mistake and cut down the cherry tree," protested Hap nervously in court, "he wasn't punished. How can I be punished for an honest mistake?"

"First of all," responded the auctioneer, "Hap's not George Washington. Secondly, I did everything necessary to earn my commission. Because the deal didn't go through wasn't my fault. It was the fault of Hap-hazard Hap."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Hap pay the commission?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that if a person contracts absolutely to sell that which he does not own, he is still bound by the terms of his agreement, concluded the judge, he was entitled to receive his commission.

Boating Commission

Issues Warning

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Thousands of boaters will take to the water over the Memorial Day weekend and the Missouri Boat Commission advised them today to (1) be sure their 1970 boat registrations have been renewed and (2) to observe the new boating safety law.

John V. Buford, executive secretary of the commission, announced 30,000 expiration notices have been sent out notifying boat owners they must renew their annual $5 boat licenses by June 30.

He also warned that safety regulations will be strictly enforced in an effort to cut down the number of accidents and the more than 200 drownings which occurred last year.

Under the new rules passed by the legislature last year you can't ride on the bow of a boat without adequate protection, water ski after sunset or without an observer or a rear view mirror in the boat, operate a boat after dark without proper lighting or violate marking buoy warnings.

When the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves in the National League playoff the three games drew a total of 153,587 fans.

Of Minimum Force
By Missouri Guard

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Adj. Gen. L. B. Adams Jr. promised Missourians Tuesday "that should their National Guard become involved (in controlling civil disorder) every restraint and minimum force will be used to cope with the situation."

But he said the guard would take no unnecessary risk of the injury or death of a guardsman.

He said the guard would be at the scene of disorder only if called out by the governor after local authorities have asked for help.

TOO INFORMAL

LONDON (AP) — The Ven. Carlyle Wotton-Davies, Archdeacon of Oxford, caused quite a sensation when he turned up for a ceremony at Westminster Abbey wearing the old-style ecclesiastical breeches and button gaiters. They have been little seen since Dr. Michael Ramsey became Archbishop of Canterbury in 1961, although before that most bishops and higher dignitaries of the state Church of England wore them.

"Things have got much slacker since the (1968) Lambeth Conference," the overcautious bishop, and in packages of T-bone Steaks, 20 pounds of pork chops and 27 pounds of boneless cured ham.

VFW Urges Support For Cambodian Move

Support for President Nixon's Cambodian policy as a means of saving the lives of American fighting men was urged today by Commander Elbert Clark of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 5368.

Speaking on behalf of the Post, Commander Clark said that "anything we do in Cambodia that results in saving American lives should have the full backing of the American people."

Commander Clark said amendments in Congress such as the Cooper-Church amendment which would block funds to support American troops in Southeast Asia "amount to the abandonment of our forces - our sons and daughters - who are fighting a cruel and inhuman enemy who might otherwise be at our very doorsteps. Congress put our men there in full support of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution."

"In the past Congress has debated declarations of war," Commander Clark said, "but this is the first time the senate has debated a 'declaration of surrender.'"

He said the "destruction of tons and tons of equipment and other supplies stored by the Communists in Cambodia for use against our men in Vietnam proves that President Nixon made the right decision in ordering the Cambodian incursion."

Elated Mao Comments on Violent Turn of Events

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung has fought a hundred battles, but at 76 his apocalyptic vision of the world is undimmed. He surveys its violence and revolution and is happy.

In a rare 700-word statement distributed by Peking's New China News Agency Wednesday, Chinese Communism's leader spoke out on international issues for the first time since April 16, 1968, when he expressed support for American blacks. Mao invokes the Vietnam war, the U.S. intervention in Cambodia, "the raging flames of the revolutionary mass movement" in the United States, Japanese "militarism," the revolutionary struggles of the Arabs and the peoples of North America, Europe and Oceania. All, he says, "are developing vigorously."

Then he says: "The danger of a new world war still exists and the people of all countries must get prepared. But revolution is the main trend in the world today."

This is Mao's meat. He reacts to it like a war horse, nostrils dilated, ears pricked up at the gunpowder smells and explosions of battle.

This near-ecstasy in the world's most famous surviving revolutionary has been kindled by the events in Cambodia and the riots, killings and mass demonstrations in the United States.

The Cambodian crisis was made for him. When the Cambodian parliament booted Prince Norodom Sihanouk out of his job on March 18, Mao had a windfall. An accident of time put the garrulous Cambodian leader in Peking. Mao adopted him as his own.

Sihanouk made common cause with the Communists of North Vietnam, Laos and South Vietnam. The Russians were caught flatfooted. Mao emerged as leader of Asian Communism. Moscow has not yet caught up.

Peking was the first to recognize Sihanouk's new government-in-exile, and Mao's statement expressed warm support for its political and military aims: the overthrow of the Lon Nol regime in Phnom Penh.

The Soviet Union has yet to recognize the Sihanouk government though, as Mao pointed out, 20 other nations did so in the first 10 days of its existence.

Mao's old eyes see American "imperialism slaughtering the white and black people," at home. He speaks of "Nixon's fascist atrocities" touching off "the raging flames of the revolutionary mass movement in the United States." Some of this is wishful thinking, some of it self-deception. Mainly it is an effort to persuade others that this is what is happening.

Whatever the situation, it gives him immense satisfaction.

What the statement reveals more than anything else is the state of Mao's mind. To conquer China he fought in the field and at the conference table for half a century. Only last year, he capped an exhausting personal struggle to purge the country of his political foes.

Most men who have lived and fought half as much would be ready to call it quits, to settle down in a rocking chair while younger men took over.

But for Mao, the road he began to tread so many years ago remains long and dark and deep. He will not be able to sleep until his dreams of revolution come true.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. McCormack's decision to retire after 42 years in Congress virtually assures the Speaker's chair he has held for nearly a decade will go to his assistant Carl Albert.

In announcing he will not seek another term this year in order to spend more time with his ailing wife, the 78-year-old Massachusetts Democrat laid the mantle of succession to the speakership on Albert, a 22-year veteran of the House.

With no visible opposition inside the Democratic party, the only potential block to the 62-year-old Oklahoma would be for Republicans to win control of the House in the fall elections. That possibility is considered unlikely, although the GOP holds out hope for reducing the 24-186 edge the Democrats now hold.

McCormack, a virtual prototype of the professional Boston Irish politician, surprised very few with his decision to call it a day in Congress when his term ends.

The story of the wandering Jew is not of Biblical origin, although the legend has appeared largely in literature, especially German and French writings. The earliest English reference to this legend dates from 1236.
